Rose of New England, but extends congratulations on the success and magnitude of the celebration of the 250th anniversary of the founding of the town. It was certainly a big affair, perhaps outdoing all previous efforts in that line, but as great as was the parade it might have been greater, and without hardly any effort on the part of the efficient committee.

Of course, down here in New London, we never concede that Norwich leads in anything. But say, despite the published statement that the parade was the biggest event of the kind ever held in eastern Connecticut, exception is taken, and perhaps the chap who caused the statement to be made naver saw the big parade in New London in 1881, on the occasion of the centennial of the battle of Groton Heights, or that on the occasion of the 250th anniversary in New London.

The celebration was unknown twenty-eight years ago, on the occasion of the Groton centennial event, and reven later on the 250th anniversary of the founding of New London.

boats are making temporary terminal at Stonington, although suggestion was made that instead of Norwich line that the old "Reliable Stonington line" be revived.

The company's wharf in New London, recently burned, will soon be febuilt and within two months New Lonbuilt and within two months new London be the eastern terminal don will again be the for the Norwich line boats, not one of which even hails from Norwich. But it was Norwich enterprise that estab-lished this old steamboat line and to change the name would be considered almost a crime.

The new and magnificent $100,000 harbor schoolhouse is completed, and now the school visitors and aldermen are in a quandary as to the disposition of National guardsmen, as against six companies, and there were three instead of two companies of Foot Guards as at Norwich, and the Putnam Phalainx were here, too. The civic leature of the procession was much larger, for in addition to the fraternal organizations represented in Norwich there were the Masonic organizations of New London and other cities, and the large volunteer fire department with visiting companies.

In the matter of floats the credit probably goes to Norwich, but Raphael, the veteran cigar man, declares that the floats in the big parade last Monday are not to be compared with those that were in the Norwich parade of 1852.

Mayor Armstrong suggested the purchase of a lot in the vicinity and to remove the building and a committee in the superiority of parades may be considered an open question, but, whether it is to the liking of New London Business Men's association would take over the building and have it occupied by small manuters will probably be never changed. It is known here and hereabouts that Norwich line passenger boats have not made.
